

Two levers, on the probability scale

Same fit as the previous figure. Note the probability scale re-expresses each interaction through the base rate, so slopes are not directly comparable across panels.

